

A high-angle, aerial photograph of a coastal scene. The left side of the image shows a dark, textured area, likely a forest or a steep embankment. Below it, a narrow strip of light-colored sand runs along the water's edge. The ocean is visible on the right, with white-capped waves crashing onto the shore. Several large, light-colored, textured rocks are scattered on the sand and in the water. The overall lighting is dramatic, with strong highlights and shadows.
